Project Deel [1], which has been developed by students at the Istituto tecnico Ernesto Balducci di Pontassieve (Province of Florence) will participate in the Global Junior Challenge 2017 [2] in the Youth Access to the Working World Category.

The project, which provides a web-based network of local professional services, has been developed by an all-male team coordinated by Professor Marco Morandini.

Professor Morandini's classes, a Tuscan excellence in the field of coding and programming, participated in Project Future Recoded [3], promoted by Microsoft and the Fondazione Cariplo [4], and coordinated by the Fondazione Filarete [5], reaching the final round with Project HomeTender [see news: #FutureFair Winners [6]].

Project Deel described by Roman Hudylko, one of the eight students on the team, who cured every aspect of the website from graphics to development with the Microsoft Azure Platform.
